

Guads Trip: October 2004

Sitting Bull: by ET

Then we tried to find another cave without GPS or good directions, plus it is on private land. We did not find it, so we decided to go to Sitting Bull Falls Cave, which was about 25 miles away. Hank and I had been to the Falls last year but not in the cave. The water was running good and the cave is right under the falls, so a raincoat is necessary unless you want to get soaked. The floor of the cave is water on top of formations, so we knew all of us would be slightly wet, at least up to knee level. It is a very nice little cave with pretty formations; lots of cave pearls and some pretty orange formations also. We took lots of pictures. This one would be fun to visit in the summer when it is very hot outside and you could wear a swimsuit, as there are pools inside that looked like they would be over the head. None of us wanted to try it this time though.
